Practice Overview

Peter was called to the Bar by Lincoln's Inn in 2012 and became a tenant at 30 Park Place in 2015 following successful completion of pupillage under the supervision of Tracey Lloyd-Nesling (Crime) and Max Davies (Family).

During his pupillage, Peter gained valuable and in depth experience across all Chambers' practice areas and spent considerable time with other members of Chambers. He now regularly appears in the County, Family, Magistrates' and Crown Courts (both prosecuting and defending); and in the Immigration Tribunal.

Peter has particular interest in criminal law, regulatory matters and civil litigation and has quickly gained appreciation for his diligence, dedication and judgment. His determination, thorough preparation and commitment to his cases has been recognised by those instructing him and he seeks to provide an approachable and professional style, tackling issues head on and dealing with difficulties as they arise.

Peter is developing a mixed practice covering all Chambers' practice areas.

Peter was educated in Cardiff and Halesowen in the West Midlands before returning to study Law at Cardiff University. He remained in Cardiff for the Bar Professional Training Course where he obtained the highest grade of 'Outstanding' and received a number of awards for his performance. Prior to starting pupillage Peter obtained a distinction in the LLM in Legal Practice and worked at Hugh James Solicitors in the Nursing Care Department, gaining valuable experience assisting and speaking for clients at NHS Review Panels. Peter then went on to work for the international development charity Christian Aid as the Wales Regional and Legacies Coordinator, doing advocacy and speaking at numerous campaigning and fundraising events.

Outside of work Peter enjoys music, playing hockey and attending his Church.

He is also a committed Welsh language learner.

Notable and Reported cases

- March 2017

Peter was instructed as Junior Counsel in the four week Inquests touching the deaths of Cerys Yemm and Matthew Williams in Argoed

Chancery & Commercial

Peter accepts instructions to draft and advise in addition to representing clients in a wide range of chancery and commercial matters in the County Court and High Court including those relating to wills and probate, unpaid contracts, unpaid solicitors fees, breach of contract, unfair contract terms, building and construction disputes and recruitment referral fees. He is developing a successful practice in contractual disputes and has represented clients at CCMC, small claims, fast track and multi track trials in respect of such matters. Peter also represents clients at mediation in attempt to resolve matters out of court.

He is regularly instructed in a broad range of civil applications including those for relief from third party debt orders and hardship payments, disclosure applications, applications to set aside, charging orders and monetary applications.

Crime

Peter regularly represents defendants at all stages of the criminal court process and has developed considerable experience in this area since he became a tenant in Chambers. Peter has represented Prosecution and Defence in a wide range of trials including S18 Wounding, Possession with Intent to Supply Class A Drugs, Dangerous Driving, Robbery, Burglary and Fraud. Having studied and written about the law of evidence for his Masters Degree in Legal Practice, Peter brings a great interest in and knowledge of, the law of evidence to his cases to the benefit of his clients. As a pupil he also gave administrative assistance to the prosecution for Operation Dino providing a valuable insight into high profile and complex criminal trials. In addition to prosecuting and defending in the Crown Court and Magistrates' Court, he is regularly instructed in the County Court in relation to anti-social behaviour orders and injunctions, matters for and against the police, licensing reviews and other regulatory matters. Peter is an approved Level 2 Crown Prosecution Service Advocate Panel advocate.
