

Hannah Ahmadi

Call: 2008

✉ clerks@30parkplace.co.uk ☎ +44 (0)2920 398421

Hannah Ahmadi is a dedicated family law specialist, with particular expertise in public law children proceedings.

She acts for local authorities, parents, and children's guardians in complex and sensitive cases, including those involving serious non-accidental injury, complex medical evidence, and international issues such as jurisdictional disputes and cross-border care.

Hannah also maintains a busy private family practice, regularly instructed in disputes over contact, residence, and specific issue applications. She is instructed frequently in fact-finding hearings and cases requiring careful handling of difficult evidence and vulnerable witnesses.

Before returning to independent practice in 2020 at the self-employed Bar, Hannah was senior in-house counsel at Hugh James Solicitors, where she led advocacy within the public family law team. This background gives her particular insight into the demands facing local authorities and strengthens her collaborative, outcome-focused approach.

Fluent in spoken Farsi, Hannah has acted in a number of cases conducted in that language. She is known for her calm presence, clear advice, and thorough preparation, qualities that make her a trusted choice for solicitors and lay clients alike.

Expertise

Family & Childcare

Hannah specialises in public and private law children proceedings, acting for local authorities, parents, and guardians. She is regularly instructed in complex care cases involving non-accidental injury, medical evidence, and international elements. Her calm, clear approach and experience across both private and public practice make her a trusted advocate for difficult and sensitive proceedings.

Education

- Bar Vocational Course, BPP Law School (2007 – 2008)
- LLB (Hons), University of Leeds (2004 – 2007)

Languages

- Farsi (fluent)